Podiatry

Podiatry covers all aspects of care for the feet and the lower limbs. Our service aims at looking after the health of people's feet by diagnosing, treating and preventing foot problems and by educating the public about good foot health. Using biomechanical assessments, we advise on the choice of proper footwear and insoles. A podiatrist works as a member of the medical team to use a range of clinical, surgical, and therapeutic techniques to treat patients with foot problems such as:

- Fungal-infected, ingrown and thickened toenails

- Thickened skin and corns

- Skin problems of the feet such as tinea pedis, lichen planus and verrucae pedis

- Foot pain caused by problems such as bunions and flatfoot

- Diabetic foot (management and education)

- Various leg ulcers and wounds
